DIED AWFUL DEATH

Wife of Young Frenchman Chained in a Cellar.

REMAINS FOUND BY WORKMAN

The Jealous Husband Was Always Victim of Remorse.

BURIED IN POTTER'S FIELD

POULTNEY, Vt., March 27.-Workmen removing a cellar wall under a dilapidated building just north of the bridge that crosses Fair Haven river, a quarter of a mile above Carver's Falls, have apparently unearthed evidence which solves the mystery of a murder which occurred seventy years ago.

The discovery was made by accident, the laborers having fallen into a pit while trying to lift some heavy stones. The pit was about eight feet deep, with a solid stone wall about twenty inches thick surrounding it. In the center of the pit was set a solid iron post attached to which was a heavy iron chain and an old-fashiened pair of handcuffs. Nearby was a heap of human bones.

Inquiry disclosed the fact that in 1831 Perry Borden, a young Frenchman, brought his young wife to Poultney to live in the house which the workmen are tearing down. She was witty and vivacious and attracted considerable attention. In a short time Borden became jealous of her and forbade her visiting a certain tavern nearby. The wife would not submit to be dictated to. One night in November, 1831, she was at the place when at about 10 o'clock Borden called for her. She left the place with him. She never was seen by her friends after that.

Mr. Borden's Story. Mr. Borden said his wife had deserted him and fled to Canada.

After a year Borden went away, and was not heard of again until 1882, when he suddenly reappeared in town. He said he had been at sea for the fifty years he had been away. His mind seemed shattered. He went to the little house and remained two years, neighbors supplying him with provisions. He finally became sick and the town took charge of him. He died in 1887, and was buried in the potter's field. The discoveries made by the workmen have led every one in this vicinity to be-lieve that Borden chained his wife in the underground cellar and left her to die a horrible death.

AN EASY WAY

It is easy to keep well if we would only observe each day a few simple rules of health. The all-important thing is to keep the stomach right, and to do this it is not necessary to diet or to follow a set rule or bill of fare. Such pampering simply makes a capricious appetite and a feeling that certain favorite articles of food must be avoided.

W. J. MURTAGH DEAD

Former Proprietor of National Republican Passes Away.

END CAME SUDDENLY THIS MORNING

His Newspaper Career in This

HIS WIDOW PROSTRATED

Mr. William J. Murtagh, who had been a resident of Washington for the past forty years, and one of the best-known citizens of the District, died this morning in his apartments at the National Hotel, where he and his wife had lived for more than fifteen years. Mr. Murtagh's death will prove a sad shock to an exceptionally wide circle of friends. During yesterday and today hundreds called to seek information as to his condition and to express sympathy. Mr. Murtagh was not only extensively known, but in every acquaintance he had a friend by whom he was greatly liked and admired. Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, on account of the condition of Mrs. Murtagh, who is quite prostrated.

Mr. Murtagh was stricken with apoplexy about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon while on an electric car returning from the Balti-more and Ohio depot, where he had gone to bid a friend good-bye. The conductor, noticing that Mr. Murtagh was ill, stopped the car and notified a policeman. An ambulance was quickly summoned, and the sufferer was speedily taken to his rooms at the National. When Dr. Frank T. Chamberlin, the family physician, called he found sis of the right side soon developed as a symptom of the apoplexy. During Monday night the patient remained unconscious.

Yesterday morning signs of improvement were noticed, and Mr. Murtagh seemed to be resting much easier. As the day wore on his condition continued to improve, and last evening he recovered partly the power of motion and was conscious enough to speak to those about his bedside. The little family circle, consisting of Mrs. Mur-tagh, who was Miss Lloyd of this city, and a niece and nephew, watched atten-tively and faithfully throughout last night, and noted a general improvement. Early today there came a sudden change for the worse. Oedema of the lungs set in, and this condition, coupled with the apoplexy and paralysis, soon made it apparent that death was a matter of but a few hours. Mr. Murtagh continued to sink until 11:16 o'clock, when he breathed his last. Mr. Murtagh had been in excellent health and it was believed his naturally strong constitution might pull him through the stroke of Monday. The complications fellowing, however, overwhelmed his strength. Many messages of sympathy have been received from friends of the family out of the city, in addition to the large number who have called personally to express their #### condolence. His Newspaper Career.

Mr. Murtagh, in connection with Lewis Clephane and others, started the National Republican newspaper in the fall of 1860, during the closing days of the exciting campaign which resulted in the election of Abraham Lincoln to the presidency. The feeling in Washington at that time was decidedly pro-southern, and on the night of the election a mob of people assembled around the office of the republican, which was then on Louisiana avenue, and attacked and gutted the office. Its publication, however, continued and after some time the other gentlemen associated with Mr. Murtagh withdrew from the enterprise and he became the sole proprietor of the paper. During the years of the war of the rebellion and those immediately following the paper at-tained prosperity and was quite influential with the national administration. Its office was removed to the corner of was known as the old Peter Force building where it remained until the fall of 1876. when it removed to the handsome brick building on the southwest corner of 13th and Pennsylvania avenue, which Mr. Murtagh had erected and which was at that time the most completely equipped newspaper building in Washington. Mr. Murtagh, however, went into several financial speculations outside of his newspaper business, and of the money that he made legitimately in the conduct of his paper a great deal was lost in bad investments, and he subsequently sold the paper to the late A. M. Clapp, who was for a long time at the head of the government printing office. Mr. Clapp retained it for a few years and then it was sold to a company of which Gen. Brady, at that time the second assistant postmaster general, was the largest stockholder. When the trial of Gen. Brady for complicity in the Star route alleged frauds was begun, Gen. Brady dis-posed of his interests and ex-Senator Wm. E. Chandler became the controlling force. He sold it to the company of which the late Frank Hatton was president, but the payments failed to be made at the proper time and Mr. Chandler again took control of the paper, finally selling it to the late E. W. Fox. During Mr. Murtagh's owner-ship and conduct of the Republican he made it a power in national affairs, and for a long period its utterances upon national policies were regarded as authori-tative and reflecting the views of the administration. was a member of the common council of the old municipal government, and for many years was chairman of the board of police commissioners. In disposition Mr. Murtagh was kind and generous, and during his prosperity he had hosts of warm personal friends, many of whom continued their regard even to the time of his death, and during the public view. He was possessed of considerable business ability, and he fortunately saved from the fortune, that he once made, sufficient to enable him and his wife to live comfortably. Mr. Murtagh was about sixty-five years of age, it is stated. The accompanying il-lustration is from his last photograph, taken a number of years ago.

Northern Asia and Siberia. Prof. Edwin A. Grosvenor of the chair of "modern governments and their administrations" at Amherst College, lectured yesterday afternoon at the Columbia Theater under the auspices of the National Geographic Society on northern Asia and Siberia. The lecture was illustrated with stereopticon views, including a number of maps. The lecturer called attention to the fact that the southernmost point of Siberia was farther north than any point of the United States. The natural coldness of the country's position is intensified by the fact that the arctic winds are unobstructed, while the wind currents from the warm Pacific are cut off by the islands of Japan and neighboring groups.

Prof. Grosvenor declared the building of the Trans-Siberian railroad to be one of the great epochs of later history. forests of Russia and its mineral resources will be developed. He believed Siberia has a great future in store. Back From Nicaragua. Among the passengers who arrived this morning from New Orleans was Mr. Geo.

Coffee is no respecter of persons when it comes to the poisonous effects thereof. A prominent physician's wife of Monticello, Ind., says that coffee treated her very badly indeed, giving her a seriou and painful stomach trouble, and a wretched, mud-Spring handicap, steeplechase and four dy complexion. Her husband is a physician of the regular school and opposed to both tea and coffee, so he induced

The stomach trouble disappeared almost like magic, and gradually her complexion cleared up now she is in excellent condition throughout. There are thousands of highly organized people who are made sick in a variety of different ways not suspect the cause of their trouble. They think that others can drink coffee and are well, and the can, but about one person out of every three is more or less poisoned by coffee, and this can be proved by leaving off coffee and taking Postum Food Coffee. In nearly every case the disorder will San Francisco, where he was mustered out of the service. After recovering from the fatigue of his journey that far he started for home.
